

Insight on Coaching – Guest Bio

Steve Salee
Executive Coach
Founder, SJS Consulting Group

Introduction

SJS Consulting Group founder, Steve Salee is a strategist, executive coach, and facilitator with over 18 years experience working with C-level executives, managers, and teams at leading organizations in various fields including aerospace, media, chemicals, financial services, consumer products, and consulting. Steve is also a sought-after speaker with recent engagements at The Conference Board, Society of Consulting Psychologists, American Psychological Association, and Out & Equal Summit. He has also researched and spoken on the topic of how executive coaching can be used to support corporate sustainability initiatives.

Experience

Prior to founding SJS Consulting Group, Steve was senior vice president of Corporate Counseling Associates (CCA), a human capital consulting firm focused on helping employees get more out of their personal and professional lives, and helping companies transform their workplaces. At CCA, he managed the coaching, training, and consulting practice. His clients included Time Warner, Viacom, Boeing, Forbes, Conde Nast, MasterCard, and the Museum of Modern Art, among others. Prior to joining CCA, he was managing director for the Brand Leadership Company, vice president of cross sales at Travelers Group, and held several management positions with the state and city of New York.

Education

Steve earned his Master of Social Work and Master in Public Administration at Columbia University and received his B.A. from Brown University. He completed executive coach training at the Executive Coach Academy and is a Professional Certified Coach through the International Coach Federation.

Professional Affiliations, Publications and Recognition

Steve is a member of the International Coach Federation, National Association of Social Workers, and the Society of Consulting Psychologists (Division 13 of the American Psychological Association). He is also a national leadership council member of GLSEN, the Gay Lesbian Straight Education Network.